PRESIDENT CALLED G. P. SENATORS

Consults With Lawmakers on Patronage Question in Their States.

WILSON IS WARNED TO LEAVE CAPITAL

City's Destruction by Earthquake Predicted—Many More Nominations Sent to Congress.

Republican senators who are being called to the White House for consultation as to nominations of democrats to federal offices today hinted that they did not object to giving the President whatever information they had as to proposed appointments, but that they did not assume the least political responsibility for the men nominated.

Senator Bradley of Kentucky, always frank and outspoken, told the President, who asked him about Henry C. Breckinridge of Lexington, to be nominated for assistant secretary of war, that personally he understood Mr. Breckinridge to be a most estimable citizen of the state, but that in this and all other appointments in that state he did not wish to assume the least political responsibility.

The President said that this was satisfactory to him, but he felt he would like to have the opinion of the senators of each state, whatever their political affiliations, on the qualifications of men about to be named to office.

Seven Republicans Called.

There were seven republican senators called into consultation by the President. They were Senator Bradley, who called with Senator James, democrat, as to the case of Mr. Breckinridge, and Senators Penrose and Kenyon of Iowa and Clark and Warren of Wyoming.

Senators Penrose and Oliver were sent for to give their views about W. R. Roper, the noted foot ball player of Princeton, who a number of years ago, Roper was today nominated for appraiser of merchandise of the port of Philadelphia.

Senator and Mr. Sullivan, an Iowa democrat, picked by the President for membership on the board of general appraisers in New York and also nominated today, while the Wyoming senators were asked about a number of applicants for land office positions in Wyoming, whose names had been submitted to Mr. Wilson, and from which a choice will shortly be made.

Do Not Seem At Ease.

The seven republican "legislative colleagues" of the President did not seem to be fully at ease as they waited outside the executive office for the summons to the President's room, but it became known, through inquiries, that while they were willing to give whatever assistance to the President possible in passing upon prospective nominations and appointments, they were not calling them in for consultation, they did not bind themselves to support the nominations in the Senate if they later concluded to change their views to particular men. Neither did they feel bound politically by their personal endorsement of the character of men without the opportunity, in some cases at least, to investigate these men. All they were willing to do was to give their views on information as they already had as to the men about whom they were asked.

Joins Country Club.

Senator O'Gorman of New York and Henry L. West, a committee from the Columbia Country Club, today waited on the President and invited him to accept honorary membership in that club, explaining to him that the constitution and by-laws of the organization admitted the President and Vice President as honorary members.

Senator O'Gorman hinted to the President that if he would get out and play golf on the grounds of the club he would get in it condition to fight tariff and other battles. The President thanked the committee for the visit and said that he would be pleased to become a member of the club. A formal letter of invitation will be addressed to him and he will accept in formal manner.

To Be Glass-Owen Bill.

The currency bill that will be introduced in Congress following the passage of the tariff bill, will, it was suggested by an influential democrat at the White House today, become known as the Glass-Owen bill, in honor of Representative Glass, who has nearly come to Washington in preparation of the bill in the House, and Senator Owen, chairman of the Senate committee that will handle the bill.

Senator Owen was at the White House during the day and said that his committee will soon begin consideration of a bill. The democratic program will be to put through a currency bill if the tariff measure advocated by the administration gets through the Senate in time for currency consideration without Congress being kept here an indefinite length of time.

Predicts City's Destruction.

"Rev. W. H. Snyder, colored, claiming to be a Methodist minister from Elyria, Ohio, and recently come to Washington, predicted at the White House today that Washington is soon to be destroyed by an earthquake. The visitor thought it his duty to tell the President of the coming troubles for this city, so that Mr. Wilson may escape if he sees fit. The information was conveyed to Assistant Secretary Thomas W. Brahaney, whose duty is to see all visitors not eligible to reach the President or Secretary's family.

The caller told Mr. Brahaney that he had had two visions of the coming earthquake. One of them was as far back as 1902 and the other just a month or so ago. Snyder couldn't fix the date from the visions, which were a little vague on details, but all the same, he said, it was going to happen. He himself is going to get out of town within a short time to avoid the confusion. When asked whether the visions gave any cause for the earthquake, Snyder said it was all due to then poor blacks in Washington. As a further evidence of his reliability and standing Snyder presented certificates of character showing that he had once been an elevator conductor in Elyria.

Anxious Over Patronage.

Dr. J. W. Coughlin, democratic national committeeman of Massachusetts, who seems anxious to know just where he stands as to distributing patronage in that state, called on the President today. E. O. Wood, national committeeman from Michigan, was likewise a caller.

Larry Anderson, the American ambassador to Japan, spent the day at the White House and will call later for a conference. Mr. Anderson has just reached the city and will spend some time with Secretary Bryan discussing affairs in Japan as they bear upon the legislative situation in California.

Representative Smith of Buffalo was a caller, consulting the President about New York water and electricity. He is entitled to the benefit of six months' pay of her deceased stepson, when designated by him as beneficiary under the law providing a gratuity or benefit after death of six months' pay of a deceased army or navy officer. This is the construction of existing law made by Controller Ludlow, stepmother of Mrs. Margaret Ludlow.

The Wrong Time for a Man to Call on a Girl

When she is ready and waiting for the other fellow, who is expected to arrive at any moment, to take her out.

Wyo. Luke Voorhees. Assistant attorney general of the United States before the Court of Claims, Samuel Houston Thompson, Jr., of Denver, Col.

May Name Republican.

President Wilson is choosing the postmaster for his home town—Princeton, N. J.—and his choice is likely to be a republican.

"Chip" Cotterill, now assistant to the postmaster, and known to the President since boyhood, is slated for the office. The resignation of the incumbent was recommended in an inspector's report to the department made before the close of the Taft administration. Representative Allan Walsh, who represents the district in Congress, was invited by the master general, Burleson to suggest a successor, but he declined, declaring that Mr. Wilson was more familiar than he with the men fit to be selected postmaster at his home.

Wilson's Nominations.

Among President Wilson's nominations sent to the Senate today were: To the board of United States general appraisers, John B. Sullivan of Iowa.

Appraiser of customs at Philadelphia, William W. Roper.

Auditor for the Interior Department, Robert W. Woolley of Virginia.

Collector of internal revenue, Herbert H. Manson, second district of Wisconsin.

Assistant secretary of war, Henry C. Breckinridge of Lexington, Ky.

Judge of the district court of Alaska, division No. 1, Robert W. Jennings of Alaska.

United States attorney for the district of Oregon, Clarence L. Reames.

Recorder of the general land office, Texas, Benjamin F. Sherrill.

Director of the census, William J. Harris of Georgia.

Register of the land office at Kalispell, Mont., Frank O. Williams; register at Santa Fe, N. Mex., Francisco Dalgado.

Receiver of the general land office, Lucius Q. C. Lamar.

Receiver of public moneys at Cheyenne.

Heads Boy Scouts.

Honorary presidency of the Boy Scouts of America was accepted today by President Wilson. The President also expressed his belief in the good resulting to the boys who are in the organization.

Colin H. Livingstone, president; George D. Pratt, treasurer; Frank Presbury of the executive board; Arthur C. Moser, president of the local council, and James S. West, chief executive of the Boy Scouts of America, called on the President, shortly after noon, to tell him of his selection as honorary president. Mr. Pratt, Mr. Presbury and Mr. West came from New York city for this express purpose.

President Wilson succeeds former President Taft as honorary head of the organization. The rulers and chief magistrates of twenty-five other nations are also heads of their national Boy Scout organizations.

Our Next Sunday Magazine

Will contain the first of a series of double-page drawings by James Montgomery Flagg, besides some very fine fiction.

It's Risky to Want Things

Is the general title of this series by the noted illustrator. They will appear every other Sunday, and will depict in graphic, semi-humorous style the vanity of many human desires, and the disillusionment that usually accompanies their realization. In regular order, their subtitles will be:

"You Wanted to See Your Boyhood Home."

"You Wanted to See Your Favorite Author."

"You Wanted to Own Your Own House."

"You Wanted to See a Storm at Sea."

"You Wanted to Vote."

"You Wanted to Visit Your Son at College."

"You Wanted to Be an Actress."

"You Wanted to Be an Illustrator."

Pericles of the Nanaimo

By William Brown Meloney

is a dashing tale of the sea by a writer whose work is already known to our Sunday Magazine readers. The element of love in it will appeal to all feminine readers.

Elevating Wall Paper

By Vera Edmondson

is the second of the vitally interesting tales of love and advertising. In this one Kits meets her fate, and chooses between love and a motor car.

A Fool and His Money

By George Barr McCutcheon

gets to the point where the reader would want to sit up o' nights to reach the climax, if he had the whole story before him.

The Law's Long Arm

By Edward Huntington Williams, M. D.

is an article telling about the many strange devices of the criminal insane to escape, and of how they are usually recaptured.

And besides all this there will be "National Topliners,"
